
OBJECTED TO TIGHTS.

Actress Gave Up Her Place in "The Rounders" Rather Than Appear.

Wilwaukee, March 19.—Bertha Walsinger of grand and comic opera fame, has refused to appear in tights in this city or St. Paul and the management of "The Rounders," not exhibiting a like feeling of modesty, has let her go. She is now living with her sister at Madison.

Miss Walsinger is a Madison girl, but most of her family live in Milwaukee. Several hundred of University of Wisconsin students, who knew her at school, were arranging to give her a grand reception. She has been on the stage several years and has appeared in this part of the country before, but never in tights. She has sworn that she will never appear near her home in anything less extensive than a dressing gown, and so she gave up her position in "The Rounders."
